

YOU SHOULDN'T
NEED TO SPECULATE
TO ACCUMULATE

With so much uncertainty in your life, do you really need it in your investments too?

Synthesis doesn't see any economic or social value in speculating on markets going up or down. We provide our clients with consistent returns that are unaffected by stock market or bond market volatility.

We're not doing anything complicated and we don't take large risks.

We are simply giving regular investors access to low-risk, global lending opportunities that up until now have been the exclusive domain of large banks.

World Trade Organisation
members will export this year over
USD 9 trillion of raw commodities.

We provide financing to facilitate that trade. Whether it is plastics exports from Asia or sunflower seeds from Eastern Europe, we step in to provide the financing that enables goods to get from one destination to another. We develop long-standing relationships so that we understand each transaction.

Over 80% will rely upon trade finance.

Over half of global exports in the sector are by SMEs. Most of them don't have access to large investment banks or unlimited cash facilities and this is where we step in to help.

Uncorrelated, Steady Returns

Trade finance offers investors continual returns on their investment, regardless of market conditions or commodity prices.

Security

All of the loans that we make are based upon the value of the underlying commodity being transported. On top of that, we continually monitor the creditworthiness of the borrower itself as an additional layer of protection.

Benefits for Investors in this sector

Diversification

As well as insulating you from volatility in stocks and bonds, our portfolio is diversified across geographies, companies and commodities.

Social Responsibility

Our loans are made to SMEs trying to finance their businesses. From farmers in Latin America to small business owners in Europe and Africa, our loans provide much needed help.
